OMNIBUS

HANDMADE IN ITALY

Superb craftsmanship and a passion for the aesthetic components of design are Italian artisan Sergio Sassolini's greatest strengths. He learned the art of carpentry by working with his father when he was sixteen. Only a few years later, dedication and love for his job led him to establish his own business, Omnibus Design, near Florence. In addition to creating custom-made products for his clients, he collaborates with accomplished designers and architects. Over the years, Sergio has constantly reinvented his design, experimenting with different materials while preserving the quality and beauty of the made-in-Italy label on all of his products, which he has exported across the world. Moreover, the issue of sustainability has always been at the heart of the company and this has led to the creation of one of the Omnibus Design's collections. "Aeternus was born from my desire to give new life to centuries-old trees of the Tuscan valleys that would otherwise be forgotten or burnt. Each piece in this collection is unique, and each has a story behind its
